	·····	CLASSIFICATION CONFIDENT	RMATTON
		SECURITY INFO CENTRAL INTELLIGEN INFORMATION
		INFORMATION	REPORT
COUNTRY	China			DATE DISTR: Augus	25X1
SUBJECT	_	n and Hydrographic Infor Port Officials/Merchan	it Vessels in Por	NO OF PAGES 2	25X1
PLACE ACQUIREI	Attitude	cilities/Military Instal of the People	lations/General	NO. OF ENCLS.	25 X 1
DATE				SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.	25 X 1
DATE OF					25/(1
	IT CONTAINS INFORMATION AP D STATES, WITHIN THE MEANING THE U.S. CODE, AE AMENOED TE CONTENTS TO OR RECEIFT BY LAW. THE REPRODUCTION	FECTING THE NATIONAL DEFENSE INGOFITTE IS, SECTIONS 793 ITS TRANSMISSION OF REVE SY AN UNACURACIZED FESSOR IS OF THIS FORM IS PROMISITED.	THIS IS U	NEVALUATED INFORMAT	TION 25 X 1
					o CTA for
	The Office TAC dissemin	of Naval Intelligence fu ation in accordance with	rnished the foll paragraph 3(c),	NSCID 7.	25 25
1.	Navigation a	nd Hydrographic Informat	ion:
1.		nd Hydrographic Informat  It was estimated  mangtao Harbor was comp.	that the e	ntire Pohal Gull are
1.		It was estimated	that the e
2	well as Chir	It was estimated	that the e well as Chir	It was estimated wangtao Harbor was comp.	that the e	• well as Chir	It was estimated	that the electery ice bound	•	ea, as

Harbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  at the innermost berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.		- 2 -
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons and the other of approximately five thousand tons.    Partor Accommodations and Facilities:
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessels one of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons, and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area:  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on the station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible on any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station  a masthead or jet was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  only the public officials of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.
a Polish cargo vessel of approximately seven thousand tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Harbor Accommodations and Facilities:    the harbor at Chinwangte could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.    the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.      the harbor depth of the four berths along the smaller western breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtac area.    Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 25 the exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible and the station of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station at the station and masthead or to be some sort of a lockout station at masthead or the station are structure. It was military in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of chinwangtac vas extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.    Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.   only the public officials 2	Mer	chant Vessels Noted at Chinvangtao:
tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbon Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist 25 vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area.  Military Installations and Perconnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 21 five exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station of the station are masthad or open crows nest type tower structure.  to be some sort of a lockout station of the station are masthad or open crows nest type tower structure, in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtac was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  The public officials only the public officials only the public officials.		following vessels were noted in the harbor:
tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tons and the other of approximately five thousand tons.  Barbon Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist 25 vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area.  Military Installations and Perconnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 21 five exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station of the station are masthad or open crows nest type tower structure.  to be some sort of a lockout station of the station are masthad or open crows nest type tower structure, in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtac was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  The public officials only the public officials only the public officials.
tons, and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately seven thousand tone and the other of approximately five thousand tones.  Barbor Accommodations and Facilities:  could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist 25 vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  Military Installations and Perconnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 21 the exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible  cation of any sort was made to on from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to a masthead or open crow's nest type tower structure.  in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  In the communist care, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  In the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.		a Rolish careo vessel of approximately sev	ren thousand
Harbor Accommodations and Facilities:  berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtao area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohal Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was locarly visible and or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  General Attitude of the Paople of Chinwangtao?  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the public officials	ton	s. and two Chinese Communist cargo vessels, one of approximately se	even thousand
Harbor Accommodations and Facilities:    could accommodate a maximum of five vessels.     at the inhermost benth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.     the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtac area.     Military Installations and Personnel* At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible   No communication of any sort was made to on from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station   a masthead or jopen crowls nest type tower structure.   it was militar in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.   Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.   only the public officials	ton	s and the other of approximately five thousand tons.	. w . <sub>12</sub> 25
berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongaide the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  The harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtao area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohal Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 20 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of sny sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station open crowing mest type tower structure.  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtao: the propersion of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangtac area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 20 feerly visible  is community in the cation of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible  cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to open crowls nest type tower structure.  in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  at the innermost 25  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  The cast house of communist true in Chinwangtac only the public officials	Har		at ChinWangte berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.    the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was approximately 30 feet. Who new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtae area.    Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohal Gulf and Hittary signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. In the exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible canion of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station are an amathead or open grows nest type tower structure. It was nilitary in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.   Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtae felt similarly.   Only the public officials	cou	1d accommodate a maximum of five vessels.
berth on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was approximately 30 feet. We new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtao area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 20 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station a masthead or open grows nest type tower structure.  The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible at the besome sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  in the Chinwangteo area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 26 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible  cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station  open crow's nest type tower structure.  it was militar in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the statio  deferral Attitude of the People of Chinwangtaos of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials vessel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western breakwater was the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.  the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted  Military Installations and Personnel. At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station open crow's nest type tower structure.  in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the statio  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtaos of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials	ber	th on the eastern breakwater, was the five thousand ton Chinese Com	IMILIALI LAGO
the harbor depth of the four berths along the eastern breakwater was approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtae area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 20 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station of the station appeared to be some sort of a lockout station of mature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of Chinwangtae appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtae was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtae felt similarly.	ves	sel. On the other side of the harbor and alongside the western bre	eakwater approximately 30 feet. The harbor depth along the smaller western breakwater was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtac area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible ation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to a masthead or open crow's nest type tower structure. It was militar in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  Only the public officials	was	the larger seven thousand ton Chinese Communist vessel.	2 was reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction activity of any sort was noted in the Chinwangtac area.  Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 20 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible animal station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible animal station was not determined. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station. The station appeared to a masthead or open crowls nest type tower structure. It was nilitary in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of Chinwangtac appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtac was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtac felt similarly.  Only the public officials	0.70	reviewed at 20 feet. The herbor depth along the eastern beganater por	eakwat on Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 28 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station a masthead or open crowls nest type tower structure. It was nilitary in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials	was	reported to be about 20 feet. No new building or construction ac	tivity of
Military Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohai Gulf a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. 26 The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station open crow's nest type tower structure. in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the statio  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtage of Chinwangtage appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtage was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtage felt similarly.  only the public officials			in the state of the state of
a military signal station on an island located south of the entrance channel. The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible  cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station  open crowls nest type tower structure.  in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao only the public officials only the public officials.	1		in didnir
The exact location of this station was not determined. This signal station was clearly visible  cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lockout station  open crow's nest type tower structure.  in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  Only the public officials 2	Mil	itary Installations and Personnel: At the entrance to Pohal Gulf	-1
Ceneral Attitude of the People of Chinwangtao:  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtao:  of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  No communi- 2  No communi- 2  In a masthead or it was military  a masthead	am	distary signal station on an island located south of the entrance of	tation was cation of any sort was made to or from the station. The station appeared to to be some sort of a lookout station open crow's nest type tower structure. in nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within the station  General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtaos of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials deneral Attitude of the People of Chinwangtaos of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  a masthead or it was military it was military.  a masthead or it was military at masthead or it was military.	_cat	sign of our cent tree made to on from the station. The station appear	ared to
General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtao:  of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials		to be some sort of a lookout station	masthead or $_2$
General Attitude of the People of Chinwangtaos of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials	ope	nicrows nest type cower structure.	MOD STREET, of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  Only the public officials	in	nature because, with binoculars, uniformed men could be seen within	n the statio
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. the Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. the Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. the Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. the Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.
of Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in Chinwangtao was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people. The Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  Only the public officials		The above the control of the control was extremely strict and seemed to be thoroughly disliked by the people.  the 2  Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  only the public officials 2	Gen	eral Attitude of the People of Chinwangtao:	the people 25
Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly.  Only the public officials 2	of:	Chinwangtao appeared to be extremely poor. The Communist rule in
Communists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the populace of Chinwangtao felt similarly	was	sextremety strict and seemed to be thoroughly distiked by the peop	the 2
Chinwangtao felt similarlyonly the public officials 2	Con	ominists were "no good" and that, in general, the majority of the p inwangtao felt similarly. only the public	officials 2
			2

- end -